Dave, we found no such easement at the time of our title exam. It would seem that if the health officials do not have such a document and if the brother has no document, then there is no easement legally.

Regarding the property I'm trying to develope for my mother-in-law. Seems Judy Hill's brother has an easment on to the lot for his drain field. The health department has no record of the easement, though they do have the inspection for the work on file. I've done a web search at the register of deeds site. Are there other places I can search and is there other information regarding this matter I should know. Looks like the health department may hold up the building permit until we understand this thing. Thanks....
